

LIMITATIONS ON CREDIT APPLICABLE TOWARD A GRADUATE CERTIFICATE

- Generally, no more than 12 credits of 5000-level courses may be applied to any graduate certificate. Individual programs may set different limits.
- The number of SPU credit-by-examination courses that may be applied toward a graduate certificate are determined by the individual graduate program, but in no case may more than 6 such credits be applied. Only admitted students are eligible for the credit-by-examination option, and examinations may be taken only in quarters in which the student is enrolled at SPU. See additional information about credit-by-examination (<https://catalog.spu.edu/graduate/academic-policies-procedures/credit-examination/>) in this catalog.
- Generally, no credits earned at other universities can be transferred toward a specific graduate certificate program. Individual programs may accept transfer work.
- SPU does not award credit for prior learning, travel, life experience, or work experience.
