SEPTEMBER SESSION

September Session is a period of several weeks beginning after summer session ends and prior to start of the regular Autumn term. September Session provides an opportunity for students to enroll in unique or specialty courses, including short-term study abroad Global Seminars.

Credits taken during September Session count toward a student's Autumn Quarter credit load, and students can apply financial aid toward these classes. Undergraduate students who take more than 18 credits total during September Session and Autumn Quarter will be charged for the overload.

September Session allows flexibility and opportunity for our students who may want to catch up on credits, or move toward degree completion more quickly.

September Session FAQ

What are the dates of September Session?

September Session dates can be found on the Academic Calendar (https://catalog.spu.edu/undergraduate/academic-calendar/). Generally, September Session runs four weeks from early- to late-September each year.

When does registration begin for September Session courses?

September Session registration will begin at the same time as Autumn Quarter registration.

How do I find the classes offered during September Session?

In the SPU Time Schedule (https://spu.edu/undergraduate-time-schedule/), you may search Courses by Part of Term and select September Session.

What are the charges and financial aid eligibility for September Session?

You will be charged Autumn Quarter tuition rates. If you receive Autumn Quarter financial aid, it will apply toward September Session courses. If you take more than 18 credits total during the September Session and Autumn Quarter, you will be charged for the overload.

What about add/drop and refund dates?

You may register or add courses by the first day of September Session. You have until the end of the second week of September Session to withdraw from classes (see the academic calendar for specific dates). Refunds are as follows: 100% through week one of September Session, and 0% thereafter.